Navigating the Financial Side of a Relationship

Mariano Garcia/Alamy

By Maria Teresa Hart

Nov. 30, 2017

Couples can fight about anything, it's just a fact of relationships. But arguments about money have a tendency to be particularly toxic, since they're layered with deep emotional and personal history.

In fact, researchers have shown there's a direct relationship between the number of times a couple has argued about their budget per month and their divorce rate.

Despite this, or maybe because of it, people tend to avoid financial talks with their partner. While standard marital advice has us studiously marking out "date nights" on the calendar to keep passion alive, there's no phrase for scheduling nights to preserve

Centrál Kávéház

One of Budapest's oldest coffee houses, Centrál Kávéház first opened its doors in 1887, and quickly became a hub for the intellectual minds of the 19th century. Writers, poets, artists, scientists and composers could often be found sipping coffee here, as could the founders of the progressive literary journal Nyugat. During the Communist era, the Art Nouveau café became a canteen for students of the nearby ELTE University, before being restored and reopened in 2000. Its classic interior, featuring dark wood, leather and chandeliers, is slightly more understated than that of its peers.

The Best Things To Do in Skopje

Explore the newly neoclassical city centre

In 2018, the government announced plans to rebuild Skopje. As part of the “Skopje 2019” rebrand, thousands of classical statues were placed in the city centre, and some of the city's most important buildings were given a neoclassical makeover. While this project was controversial due to its cost, it also led to a lot of regeneration in the city centre, which is now a much more pleasant place to visit. One of the best things to do in Skopje is to visit the city centre, which is now a much more pleasant place to visit. Origins

Croatia adopted the tricolour design in 1848, as the country's name often featured the word “Croat” in a period of cultural and national awakening. The Serbians also used the tricolour, but their version is associated with Croatia in 1848. However, the tricolour is believed to have been used informally since the 19th century. The tricolour was also used on the flag of the Kingdom of Serbia, which was known as “Vojislav” in the 19th century. The tricolour was also used on the flag of the Kingdom of Yugoslavia in 1918.

An unwelcome association

Yugoslavia was ripped apart in every direction by the brutality of World War II. A Nazi puppet state called the Independent State of Croatia was established, and the country was divided into two parts. The region of Croatia was divided into two parts, and the region of Serbia was divided into two parts. The five crowning shields

There is a link to the Croatian coat of arms from the beginning of the 19th century. The five crowing shields that crown it represent the five historical regions of Croatia, which have their own coats of arms. The five crowing shields are: the white shield with a blue cross, the blue shield with a white cross, the red shield with a white cross, the white shield with a red cross, and the blue shield with a white cross.

Red is the golden color of the coat of arms, and the blue shield is the golden color of the coat of arms. The golden color of the coat of arms is the golden color of the coat of arms. The golden color of the coat of arms is the golden color of the coat of arms.
